Women Belong In All Places Where Decisions Are Being Made

Let us be grateful for trailblazing women.

We wish you and your loved ones good health, safety, and support in 2022.

— Ruth Bader Ginsburg
As 2021 draws to a close, we pause and remember those whose lives were lost and those who suffered severely in other ways across the globe this year. Unfortunately, like 2020, the year 2021 was very difficult for many. While we started 2021 with great optimism, we quickly faced the reality that the year posed as many, if not more, challenges than we encountered in 2020.

Despite its difficulties and challenges, the international dispute resolution community continued to come together to support each other and promote diversity and inclusiveness in 2021. There were new diversity initiatives, such as Racial Equality for Arbitration Lawyers (R.E.A.L.), launched on Martin Luther King Jr. Day (18 January 2021), and trailblazing women continued to break glass ceilings in arbitration and ADR, such as Claudia Salomon becoming the first female President of the ICC International Court of Arbitration. International Women’s Day 2021 was celebrated around the world. ArbitralWomen celebrated the increased representation of women in arbitration and honored the five-year anniversary of the Equal Representation in Arbitration Pledge as well as the one-year anniversary of the passing of the late US Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg.

As we look ahead to 2022, we can anticipate some setbacks as the pandemic again surges in many parts of the world. Nonetheless, I am confident we will achieve significant progress for women and diversity. Finally, in June 2022, the ArbitralWomen membership will elect a new Board of Directors to govern the organization going forward. This will bring fresh new ideas from young, diverse, new talent to the Board. These new Board members will work collaboratively side-by-side women who continue on the Board for another term to provide leadership and continuity. Ideally the 2022 Board composition will further reflect ArbitralWomen’s geographic and ethnic diversity as a global organization.

It has been an honor to serve as President of ArbitralWomen for the past four years. As many know, I will step down as President on 30 June 2022. I am excited about the next generation of ArbitralWomen leadership and am committed to ensuring a smooth transition and success for ArbitralWomen in the future.

Dana MacGrath
ArbitralWomen President

Recap of some ArbitralWomen highlights of 2021

ArbitralWomen continued to persevere and thrive in 2021, notwithstanding the challenging circumstances of the pandemic and other traumatic events around the world. We take this opportunity to share some of what ArbitralWomen achieved in 2021, thanks to our dedicated Board members, engaged membership community, and many allies around the world. We cannot capture everything in this limited recap of 2021, so we encourage our members to please join us for our upcoming virtual Annual General Meeting on 1 February 2022 to hear from our Directors.

ArbitralWomen Connect, a programme launched by Elizabeth Chan in 2020 to connect members with different backgrounds, degrees of experience, and seniority in dispute resolution for virtual networking and knowledge sharing, continued to thrive in 2021. Four cycles of ArbitralWomen Connect were run in 2021 involving close to 100 members from more than a dozen jurisdictions. These virtual networking sessions were extremely rewarding to the participants, and we look forward to running the ArbitralWomen Connect programme in 2022. Many thanks to Elizabeth Chan for spearheading this initiative.

Our Young ArbitralWomen Practitioners (YAWP) group ran several initiatives and events in 2021 organised by the YAWP Steering Committee (YAWP SC) comprised of ArbitralWomen Vice-President Louise Woods as Chair, Elizabeth Chan as Co-Director, Patricia Nacimiento as Co-Director, Cherine Foty as YAWP SC Liaison, and YAWP SC 2020-2021 members Katie Hyman,Montserrat Manzano, Aanchal Basur and Annabelle Möckesch. In 2021, YAWP organised and/or supported 13 events/initiatives. YAWP continued its Workshop Training Series on damages and other expert topics, including its October 2021 YAWP/Ernst and Young workshop on “Demystifying Quantum and Expert Evidence: The Impact of COVID-19 on Damages Assessment” and December 2021 YAWP/Mazars workshop on “Financial Reporting Fraud in International Arbitration.” Additionally, in August 2021, YAWP launched the YAWP Speaker Panel Survey Project to develop opportunities for AW members under 40 to build their professional profiles by serving as a moderator, speaker or volunteer at events organised and/or supported by AW/ YAWP. The Speaker Panel Survey Project was launched to identify members who are interested in such opportunities and other professional development activities offered by AW and YAWP. Congratulations to the YAWP Directors and Steering Committee members on their accomplishments during 2021. Finally, six new geographically diverse members of the YAWP SC were selected to take office in January 2022: Sanaa Babaa, Krystle Baptista, Manini Brar, Dilber Devitre, Olga Sendetska and Jee Hee Suh.

The Newsletter Committee co-chaired by Maria Beatriz Burghetto and Erika Williams was very busy in 2021. Thanks to their leadership and the hard work of the Newsletter team, ArbitralWomen issued 6 newsletters in 2021 (including this one). The team published several interviews of women leaders in arbitration, including an interview of Rekha Rangachari by Cherine Foty, an interview of Crensuna Leaua by Mihaela Apostol, an interview of Karen Mills by Donna Ross, and an interview of Claudia Salomon by Patricia Nacimiento. The team also published several articles on Women’s Initiatives in the Workplace, several reports by ArbitralWomen, reports on initiatives by ArbitralWomen members, news articles you may have missed on our News Page, and more than 100 reports on arbitration and ADR conferences and events/webinars involving our members. Congratulations to our Newsletter team on such expansive coverage during such a difficult year, and many thanks to our contributors who submitted reports on events, articles, and interviews.

The News Committee was busy in 2021 as well. ArbitralWomen published close to 20 News Page articles. Contributing authors included Sneha Ashtikar, Laura Canet, Elizabeth Chan, Rachel Chiu, Derin Coker, Diana Droulers, Cherine Foty, Nata Ghibradze, Ema Vidak Gojkić, Olga Hamama, Nadja Harraschau, Emily Hay, Ayelet Hochman, Iuliana Iancu, Jennifer Ivers, Annie Lespérance, Dana MacGrath, Ibugunoluwa Owa, Nicola Peart, Maria Eugenia Ramirez, Dara Sahab, Olga Sendetska, Mrinalini Singh, Eunice Shang-Simpson, Debi Slate, Shayda Vance, Svenja Wachtel, Aviva Will, and Vanessa Zimmermann de Meireles. The News Committee also shared news about approximately 100 of our members’ achievements, promotions and appointments in our News Alerts and on our webpage dedicated to News about ArbitralWomen Members (led by Cherine Foty). We issued countless News Alerts.

The social media team (Amanda Lee and Elizabeth Chan) was on overdrive in 2021. They shared more than 500 posts on LinkedIn and more than 400 tweets on Twitter; a record-breaking year for ArbitralWomen!

The Parental Mentorship Programme (led by Gisèle Stephens-Chu and Louise Woods) together with YAWP SC member Katie Hyman was very active as well. ArbitralWomen held five parental mentorship group virtual discussion events, with close to 50 members registering for the events over the year 2021.

Our traditional Mentorship Programme (led by Yasmeen Lahlou, Amanda Lee, and Alison Pearsall) matched more than 40 mentees with mentors in 2021 and held its inaugural exclusive event for Mentorship Programme participants featuring Wendy Miles QC and Lucy Reed.

Our Moot Programme (led by Affef Ben Mansour) is funding 13 teams from around the world participating in a variety of moot competitions.

The Cooperation and Collaboration Committee led by Rekha Rangachari was also very active in 2021. We entered into several new cooperation agreements, for example with the BVI International Arbitration Centre, Dispute Resolution Data, and Arbitrator Intelligence.

The Events Committee organized events in 2021 on the occasion of Australia Arbitration Week, Hong Kong Arbitration Week, BVI Arbitration Week, Dubai Arbitration Week, New York Arbitration Week and Washington Arbitration Week (coordinated by Global Events Director Rekha Rangachari).

In parallel, throughout 2021 our Board has been doing extensive work in the background that is less visible to our members. The Membership Committee has been intensely busy, given that applications for membership increased substantially this year. Our Treasurer, Juliette Fortin, has similarly been tasked with additional work, as ArbitralWomen has funded more moot teams, accepted more members, and incurred additional expenses related to administrative aspects of the Organisation. Our Secretary, Gaelle Filhol, has been preparing for the 1 February 2022 Annual General Meeting and the June 2022 Board elections. We assembled a special By-Laws Task Force to draft revised By-Laws. Notwithstanding the pandemic, the Board has met monthly throughout the year, allowing for a free flow of information among the Board and good governance.

To conclude, this has been a productive and successful year for ArbitralWomen against a backdrop of difficult global circumstances. Given ArbitralWomen’s perseverance and success in the challenging climate of 2020 and 2021, just imagine how much ArbitralWomen can achieve when the pandemic is truly behind us.

We thank everyone who supported ArbitralWomen in 2021. Have a wonderful holiday season. We hope to see many ArbitralWomen members at the virtual Annual General Meeting on 1 February 2022.

Young Mute-Off Thursdays celebrates its First Year Anniversary on 26 August 2021!

By Rachel Chiu, ArbitralWomen Member and Laura Canet, Derin Coker, and Ayelet Hochman
19 August 2021

Young Mute-Off Thursdays (the younger sister group to Mute-Off Thursdays) will celebrate its First Year Anniversary on 26 August 2021, to mark one year of weekly Thursday meetings and to celebrate our international community of bright and capable young women practitioners in arbitration.

Young Mute-Off Thursdays is another story of creating opportunity for women in the legal profession amidst the challenges of practice in the Covid-19 pandemic. In May 2020, when many of us were subject to strict pandemic-related social restrictions, ArbitralWomen member Rachel Chiu reached out to Ayelet Hochman (a colleague whom she had met at a conference before the pandemic) for a telephone catch-up. This phone call was a small part of our new reality, in which professional connections are harder to maintain and create.

Just a few months earlier, ArbitralWomen members Emi Vidak Gajković, Gaëlle Filhol, Catherine Anne Kunz and Claire Morel de Westgaver launched the successful online forum Mute-Off Thursdays. The forum is designed to help senior women in arbitration share knowledge and stay connected with the arbitration community and combat the challenges of underrepresentation and invisibility that women practitioners faced, which risked being amplified under the new normal of socially distanced working and living.

The phone call between Ayelet and Rachel marked the start of a new online forum where young women practitioners in arbitration from all corners of the world could meet, network, and find support. They reached out to two other colleagues with different backgrounds and from different jurisdictions, Derin Coker and Laura Canet, to help build this community. Together, with the support of the Mute-Off Thursdays’ team, Derin, Laura, Ayelet and Rachel launched Young Mute-Off Thursdays in August 2020!

Ever since, Young Mute-Off Thursdays has met every Thursday, at the same time (9am ET / 2pm GMT), over Zoom for 30 minutes. Every Thursday, a woman practitioner (either a senior practitioner in the field or a member from the group) is invited to lead a discussion on a select topic. A wide range of topics have been discussed at these Thursday sessions, from developments in the law, drafting and advocacy tips, to maintaining sustainable success and work-life balance. Occasionally, senior practitioners share details about their person journey in legal practice, which is always an inspiration to members in the group. Young Mute-Off Thursdays also hosts regular networking sessions for members to interact with each other in smaller groups, and features workshops by external speakers on law-related topics such as accounting, expert work, and mental health.

A year on, ‘Young Mute-Off Thursdays’ community has grown from a small list of each co-chair’s personal contacts to a strong following of more than 200 young women practitioners from all over the world, from West Africa, to Europe, the Americas, India and Singapore!

At Young Mute-Off Thursdays, many women are in the early stages of their stages and in the process of establishing their professional network. As such, Young Mute-Off Thursdays serves as a platform for members to build and maintain their network amongst their peers, and a bridge between young and senior practitioners, to benefit from their experience, mentorship, support and collaboration. It also aims to provide women practitioners with a safe space for knowledge sharing and discussion, assist young female practitioners with raising their profile, and strives to promote a culture of collegiality and kindness.

As part of its anniversary celebrations, Young Mute-Off Thursdays will host a special one-hour session on 26 August at 9am ET / 2pm GMT / 9pm SG. It will feature a practical workshop by professional coach Amanda Pelham Green that will aim to equip participants with career skills to help them be the best versions of themselves in practice, and bring out the best of others in their teams. Participants will also be invited to interact in smaller break-out rooms. Details of the session may be found on the ArbitralWomen events page here.

The event is open to ArbitralWomen members up to 7-PQE. If you would like to attend the Special Anniversary session or are interested to join the group, please send your request to youngmu-teoffthursdays@gmail.com.

ArbitralWomen and Dispute Resolution Data Sign a Memorandum of Understanding

By Diana Droulers, CEO of DRD, and Debi Slate, Co-Founder and COO of DRD — both former ArbitralWomen Board members.
20 August 2021

ArbitralWomen and Dispute Resolution Data (DRD) are delighted to announce having entered a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) to promote diversity in ADR, a few weeks after Diana Droulers succeeded Bill Slate as the new CEO of DRD. Diana Droulers, along with Debi Slate, DRD’s Co-Founder and COO, are both ArbitralWomen Founding Members and former Board Directors. ArbitralWomen is thrilled to see Diana and Debi leading a pioneering initiative that offers the benefits of data analytics.

The DRD global database allows users to access yearly trends starting in 2005 and set multi-year parameters in their data and statistical searches. DRD’s dynamic data is unique in its uniformity and sheds light on many aspects of international arbitration and mediation that were previously not accessible. DRD addressed the vision of Bill and Debi Slate, to better equip international arbitration and mediation with data that supplement lawyers’ knowledge and confidence via uniform data-based statistics and analysis. The mission of DRD is to enhance and expand the practice of arbitration and mediation through the collection and dissemination of trusted aggregated case data, while maintaining confidentiality, a key component for DRD. This data provides insights into ADR practices and trends for parties, dispute resolution institutions, advocates, arbitrators, mediators, researchers and policy makers.

DRD is the first and only global database pertaining to international commercial arbitration and mediation dispositions. Global Arbitration Review (GAR) awarded DRD in 2017 the Best Innovation by an Individual or Organization award. This innovation refers to the development of a robust, dynamic database, now over 5,000 cases and 172,000 data points, for data collection and reporting. The number of institutions contributing their closed case data has more than doubled from nine in 2015 to nineteen in 2021. Thus far the data that has been contributed includes data from CACC, ICDR, CEDR, ACICA, CAM, CECAP CAM Santiago, BCDR, CANACO, CCB, CAM-CCBC, CEDCA, CRC, ICC, VIAC, CAINCO, MCIAC, MIAIC, CAC with more on the horizon. DRD is grateful that so many institutions understand the value of the DRD’s mission to advocate for transparency and inclusiveness in international commercial arbitral data in order to enhance the abilities of those working within this area.

To effectively be available to those wanting the most current data, DRD offers “on-demand” customized reports, as well as the ability to have API access. Look for more information in the coming months as DRD becomes a universal resource in the field of international commercial arbitration.

DRD first began collecting gender information on arbitrator tribunals by case type and region when it became a signatory of the Equal Representation in Arbitration pledge in 2015. The diversity data collected shows incremental progress of the number of female arbitrators. While more progress is needed, Diana and Debi are happy to see the changes in a field where they have contributed to promote gender diversity.

In addition to bringing her experience as former Executive Director of the Centro de Arbitraje de la Cámara de Caracas (CACC) for sixteen years, President of IFCAI for eight years, member of the ICC Court for a second mandate of three years, and former Latin America Advisor for DRD for five years, Diana has continuously promoted female practitioners in Latin America (click here to see an interview with Diana published in ArbitralWomen Newsletter 2014). Diana and Debi, former National Vice President of Online Dispute Resolution with American Arbitration Association, combine an invaluable experience in international dispute resolution, which will help them steer DRD as it becomes a necessary resource for anyone working in the international ADR field.

Debi commented, “Diana was the natural choice to follow Bill as she has been integrally involved with DRD since its start five years ago. She immediately understood the necessity and benefits to the world of international commercial arbitration that DRD’s data analytics could provide. We are pleased to have Diana at the helm moving DRD forward.”
We are pleased to announce that ArbitralWomen and Arbitrator Intelligence formalised their longstanding relationship by entering into a Cooperation Agreement in October 2021.

The Cooperation Agreement was signed on behalf of ArbitralWomen by Dana MacGrath, ArbitralWomen President, and on behalf of Arbitrator Intelligence by Catherine Rogers, Founder and CEO of Arbitrator Intelligence.

The Cooperation Agreement encourages collaboration on the organisation of dispute resolution-related events as well as providing support and promotion for events, projects, and initiatives.

“We are excited to formalise ArbitralWomen’s collaborative relationship with Arbitrator Intelligence and encourage the sharing of information about diverse arbitrators with Arbitrator Intelligence to increase the visibility and recognition of the many diverse arbitrators in international arbitration,” commented ArbitralWomen President Dana MacGrath. “Arbitrator Intelligence contributes significantly to raising the profile of diverse arbitrators and we share a common goal of promoting the visibility of qualified female arbitrators.”

Arbitrator Intelligence Founder and CEO Catherine Rogers commented, “Given ArbitralWomen’s leadership in putting diversity on the agenda in international arbitration, we could not be prouder about the opportunity to work together with ArbitralWomen to improve informational resources about female and diverse arbitrators.”

ArbitralWomen recently supported Arbitrator Intelligence’s 2021 Diversity Campaign, which encouraged members of the arbitration community to share feedback on diverse arbitrators and help them to turn places on shortlists into appointments.

As part of the Arbitrator Intelligence Diversity Campaign, ArbitralWomen President Dana MacGrath joined representatives of leading diversity organisations and arbitral institutions from across the globe for a webinar focusing on “Assessing and Resolving Disparities in Arbitrator Appointments.” A recording is available here.

Previously in 2018, ArbitralWomen and Arbitrator Intelligence co-sponsored the Campaign on Women Arbitrators, encouraging members of the arbitration community to complete a feedback questionnaire about female arbitrators.

The insights obtained from feedback provided to Arbitrator Intelligence are used to produce Reports that will help to promote diversity and transparency by making information about lesser-known diverse arbitrators widely available, enabling their reputations to develop.

Readers can help Arbitrator Intelligence to continue to provide the market with information about female arbitrators and further the cause of diversity by completing an online questionnaire about them here or by scheduling an appointment to provide feedback to a member of the Arbitrator Intelligence team here.

For media enquiries, please contact ArbitralWomen at: contact@arbitralwomen.org and Arbitrator Intelligence at: info@arbitratorintelligence.com.
agreed that some gender diversity progress has been made in recent years, but less than a third felt similarly about ethnic diversity.

Burford Capital reviews hundreds of billions of dollars in commercial disputes annually, but since its inception in 2009, of the thousands of matters brought to it each year for funding, less than 5% had a woman in a leading role, and even fewer were led by people of colour. In 2018, Burford launched The Equity Project, a $50 million pool of capital earmarked to back litigation and arbitration led by women. As of December 31, 2020, Burford had committed nearly $57 million to matters led by women.

Building on this success, in October 2021 Burford announced its expansion of The Equity Project with an additional $100 million and broadening its mission to address both female and racially diverse lawyers.

In earmarking capital through The Equity Project, Burford seeks to provide lawyers who have been historically underrepresented in the business of law an edge as they pursue leadership positions in significant commercial litigations and arbitrations.

Further, when Equity Project investments resolve successfully, Burford will contribute on behalf of the client some of Burford’s profits to a charitable organisation focused on advancing the careers of female and diverse lawyers.

Arbitration is a focus area for Burford and the Equity Project. Of the 25 global Equity Project Champions—men and women who help Burford ensure that female and racially diverse lawyers are aware of the capital available—nine are leaders in international arbitration and dispute resolution. Further, of the nearly $57 million committed in phase one of The Equity Project, 24% was committed to support women-led international arbitration claims.

Arbitration claims that may qualify for Equity Project financing include matters where a female or racially diverse lawyer is first or second chair, serves as lead counsel, earns the origination credit, is the client-relationship manager, or where the client is being represented by a law firm that is owned by female or racially diverse lawyers.

Maria Eugenia Ramirez commented: “I am delighted to have been invited to join the next phase of The Equity Project as an Equity Project Champion, and I look forward to its continuing growth throughout 2022.”

We are pleased to share this announcement and requests for more information: equityproject@burford-capital.com.

ARBinBRIEF: a practical arbitration video guide showcasing diverse arbitrator talent

By the members of the ARBinBRIEF founding team: Elizabeth Chan, Nata Ghibradze, Dr. Nadja Harraschain, Olga Hamama, Emily Hay, Iuliana Iancu, Ikubunoluwa Owa, Dara Sahab, Olga Sendetska, Mrinalini Singh and Vanessa Zimmermann de Meireles.

29 November 2021

ArbitralWomen is proud to support ARBinBRIEF, a new initiative that offers practical video guides on hand-picked arbitration topics while showcasing diverse arbitrator talent.

The ARBinBRIEF series is divided into seasons consisting of 10 episodes each. Each episode features a 15-minute live conversation between two arbitrators that is recorded, followed by a (not-recorded) 15-minute audience Q&A. The number of ‘live’ audience members is limited for each episode to allow for meaningful engagement with the speakers. The episodes air every fortnight on Wednesdays. The recorded conversation is then shared as part of a library of video guides on ARBinBRIEF’s YouTube Channel and the Delos Dispute Resolution’s website.

The first season of ARBinBrief launched in October 2021. Over the course of ten episodes in the first season, ARBinBRIEF moves through the lifecycle of an arbitration. The first four episodes focused on the early stages of an arbitration, where arbitrators’ decisions may have important implications for the rest of the arbitration. The decision-making stages discussed during the first four ARBinBRIEF episodes included:

1. appointing arbitrators,
2. immediate steps to take after being appointed as arbitrator,
3. case management conferences, and
4. drafting Procedural Order No. 1.

The ARBinBRIEF format of two arbitrators in conversation offers a unique opportunity to showcase arbitrator talent. These conversations give arbitrators not only the opportunity to share their relevant experience and demonstrate their presentation skills but also to give insight into their general approach in conducting arbitrations.

Arbitrators featured in episodes to date (including several ArbitralWomen members) are: Wendy Miles QC and Jennifer Bryant (Episode 1); Chiann Bao and Fatima Balfaqeeh (Episode 2); Preeti Bhagnani and Suzanne Rattray (Episode 3); Dana MacGrath and Krystle Baptista Serna (Episode 4).

Elizabeth Chan, a member of the founding ARBinBRIEF team, ArbitralWomen Board member, and member of the Equal Representation in Arbitration Pledge Young Practitioners Subcommittee, said, “ARBinBRIEF is a fantastic resource for everyone in the arbitration community, whether they are arbitrators, counsel, parties, experts, academics or others, looking for a quick, go-to guide on how to conduct specific parts of the arbitral process. It’s also a chance to celebrate the diversity of the global arbitrator pool, as a step towards achieving more diverse arbitrator appointments. The first four episodes featured arbitrators from diverse regions, including North America, Europe, Asia, the Middle East and Africa.”

Ibukunoluwa Owa, another member of the ARBinBRIEF team observed, “ARBinBRIEF is a practical resource not just for young arbitrators but anyone conducting their first arbitration. For example, I enjoyed hearing Suzanne Rattray explain how the time management skills she gained as an engineer influenced how she conducts case management conferences efficiently.”

ArbitralWomen President Dana MacGrath commented, “ARBinBRIEF is a fantastic virtual platform for knowledge-sharing on specific arbitration issues through short interviews followed by a Q&A session. You can learn a significant amount and gain unique insights from experienced arbitrators in less than 30 minutes per episode. It is also a wonderful way to feature diverse talent in the arbitration field.”

To join the live audience for future ARBinBRIEF episodes, visit www.ARBinBRIEF.com, follow us on LinkedIn, subscribe on YouTube, and consult our video library hosted by Delos.
The Equal Representation in Arbitration Pledge (Arbitration Pledge) has formed a new USA Subcommittee which launched in November 2021 to take forward the promotion of the Arbitration Pledge among the broad geographic reach of the United States, focusing on increasing awareness and driving change in the appointment of female arbitrators, female practitioners as lead counsel and the advancement of female in-house counsel.

The group is led by ArbitralWomen President and Arbitration Pledge USA Subcommittee Co-Chair Dana MacGrath, ArbitralWomen Member, Arbitration Pledge USA Subcommittee Co-Chair Sarah Reynolds (Managing Partner, Goldman Ismail Tomasselli Brennan & Baum), and ArbitralWomen Member and Arbitration Pledge USA Subcommittee Co-Chair Victoria Sahani (Associate Dean and Professor of Law, Arizona State University Sandra Day O’Connor College of Law), together with ArbitralWomen Member and USA Pledge Subcommittee Secretary Nilufar Hossain (Legal Counsel and Associate Investment Manager, Omni Bridgeway).

The Arbitration Pledge USA Subcommittee is composed of a diverse cross-section of men and women in the US arbitration community.

USA Subcommittee Members will work closely with the international arbitration community and other groups to understand the needs and challenges which diverse arbitrators face in getting appointments, diverse arbitration practitioners face coming up through the ranks at law firms, and diverse in-house arbitration counsel face in advancing within their organisations. The Press Release issued by the Equal Representation in Arbitration is accessible here.
ArbitralWomen was a proud supporting organisation of New York Arbitration Week 2021 that included a full week of programming by the AAA/ICDR, ICC, ASIL, SIAC, New York City Bar Association, Columbia Law School, King’s College London and Three Crowns, ArbitralWomen, CIArb New York Branch and NYIAC, YIAP and NYIAC, CPR, JAMS, SVAMC and Fordham Law School.

ArbitralWomen hosted a panel discussion on November 19, 2021, “New York Stories: Career Options, Opportunities, and Challenges in International Arbitration,” focused on career options and opportunities, as well as the challenges faced by international arbitration practitioners. Speakers shared stories about their professional paths and career transitions.

Panelists included Chris Alberti, Lorraine Brennan, Dana MacGrath and Friedrich Rosenfeld. The panel was moderated by Yasmine Lahlou and Louise Woods.

Louise Woods introduced the panel with words by the famous poet, Robert Frost:

“Two roads diverged in a wood, and I —
I took the one less traveled by,
And that has made all the difference.”

Speakers noted that with globalization, arbitration has expanded across the world, and that increased diversity in the business community calls for a diverse arbitration community. Additionally, due to technological advancements, virtual hearings and meetings are more common, and has afforded younger practitioners opportunities to launch initiatives, access mentoring opportunities, and participate in virtual webinars. Also, there is increasing transparency in international arbitration.

Panelists emphasized the importance of senior practitioners and arbitrators giving back to the arbitration community through coaching, mentoring, sponsoring and sharing advice. Speakers also highlighted the importance of networking among all levels, including peer to peer networking. Panelists also encouraged younger practitioners to join committees and activities relevant to their areas of interest and to be actively engaged participants.

Finally, speakers encouraged younger practitioners to periodically “check-in” with themselves about the status of their career and, if appropriate, dare to change, even at the risk of failure. A professional journey involves planning together with periodic reflection on its development. Sometimes “taking the road less traveled” and being entrepreneurial can reap wonderful professional rewards. Consider looking for a practice area in line with your interests that is underrepresented and develop a niche expertise in that area.

The ArbitralWomen event concluded by sharing ways to increase diversity in international arbitration, such as providing younger arbitration lawyers with advocacy opportunities, involving younger lawyers as tribunal secretaries on matters, providing younger lawyers visibility to arbitral institutions. Speakers noted that diversity extends far beyond gender and acknowledged there is much work still to be done to achieve diversity in arbitration.

The Campaign for Greener Arbitrations has newly constituted its Global Steering Committee and Sub-Committees for the 2022-2023 Term, spotlighting several ArbitralWomen members. The Campaign for Greener Arbitration is an initiative to reduce the environmental impact of international arbitrations by promoting awareness of the arbitration community’s carbon footprint and producing best practice guides and concise action for better environmental behaviors. The Global Steering Committee is led by ArbitralWomen member Lucy Greenwood, who founded the Campaign in 2019 as a “Green Pledge” which now has hundreds of signatories. She has now taken on the role of President.

ArbitralWomen Board Member Cherine Foty and ArbitralWomen Member Christine Falcicchio have been appointed as Vice Presidents of the Global Steering Committee and serve under the direction of the President. Both Christine and Cherine were integral members of the working group which launched the Campaign’s Green Protocols on Earth Day in April earlier this year. The launch was covered in an article co-authored by Lucy, Christine, and Cherine on the Kluwer Arbitration Blog. Other board members of the Global Steering Committee include ArbitralWomen members Stephanie Collins (Law Firm Co-Liaison), Rebecca James (Research & Policy Co-Director), Maguelonne de Brugiére (Green Protocols Director), and Nicola Gore (Website and Social Media Co-Director).

In addition to the Global Steering Committee, the Campaign has announced that six regional sub-committees formed in the course of June 2021 are now fully operational. The regional sub-committees are led by 14 co-chairs and 4 vice-chairs, and have nearly 150 regional sub-committee members. The following ArbitralWomen members sit as chairs of regional sub-committees: Bronwyn Lincoln (Co-Chair of the Asia Pacific Sub-Committee), Nathalie Allen Prince (Co-Chair of the Europe Sub-Committee), and Antonia Birt (Co-Chair of the MENA Sub-Committee).

In addition, the following ArbitralWomen members serve on regional sub-committees: ArbitralWomen President Dana MacGrath (North America Sub-Committee), ArbitralWomen Board Member Affef Ben Mansour (Africa Sub-Committee), ArbitralWomen Board Member Rekha Rangachari (North America Sub-Committee), and ArbitralWomen members Laura Keily (Asia Pacific Sub-Committee), Chloé Vialard (Asia Pacific Sub-Committee), Iuliiana Iancu (Europe Sub-Committee), Charlotte Matthews (Europe Sub-Committee), Monika Diehl (Europe Sub-Committee), Patricia Snell (Europe Sub-Committee), Pamela McDonald (MENA Sub-Committee), Seema Bono (MENA Sub-Committee), Christine Falcicchio (North America Sub-Committee), Laurence Marquis (North America Sub-Committee), and Victoria Sahani (North America Sub-Committee).

The Campaign also formalized five subject-matter sub-committees committed to further carrying forward the work of the Campaign. The following ArbitralWomen members sit on those sub-committees: ArbitralWomen Board Member Rekha Rangachari (Institution Sub-Committee) and ArbitralWomen members Nicola Peart (Green Protocols Sub-Committee), Sarah Vasani (Green Protocols Sub-Committee), and Charlotte Matthews (Website and Social Media Sub-Committee).
